Your contribution is critical to our work of ensuring the well-being and development of marginalized communities in India's remotest villages. The 35AC Corpus Fund is a Leadership for Change Fund which grooms and nurtures PRADAN's development professionals. Over a period of 5 years, a professional works with around 1500 poor rural families to ensure:

- improved incomes and food security
- rejuvenated natural resources
- confident farmers not afraid of next drought
- women's self-help groups stand up against discrimination
- Improved access to healthcare, public distribution system and other public services.
- producer collectives and cooperatives of small-holder farmers linked to markets

PRADAN is one of the few institutions in India offering a platform for young university graduates from diverse backgrounds to explore and contribute to socio-economic change in rural India. Known as the Development Apprenticeship programme, 2000+ professionals have gone through this programme and 80% of them continue to be change agents in NGOs across the country. 18 of our alumni are leading their own organisations.
